Foreword

THE persons who helped to compile the contents of this book have put into it their best efforts. May this book, the finished product of their efforts, stand out as a credit, not only to themselves, but to the Colorado Teachers College of which they are a part.

Dedication

TO Teachers Everywhere, to all who have taught, to all who are teaching now, to all who will teach in the coming years of reconstruction that must lead the world into a new social order, this book is dedicated. To the teacher it is given to light the fires of spiritual progress. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." Men's greed, lust, mad nationalism and strife have rent it into fragments of desolation. The little children of to-day—the men and women of tomorrow—must redeem it for its Divine Owner. To the teacher the torch is given to light these children on their perilous way.

Teacher's Wash Game

The team record on State in a contest was almost unbroken by the pace which the college set, and at no time during the game were they conceded a chance.

Scoring started with teachers tossing baskets. At the end of the first half the count was 36-12 for the college. The second half was a repetition of the first and the final score was 80-12.

Bliss led in scoring with eleven field goals. McCorkle made eleven field goals. Preston in caging the ball to addition made two free throws. Dobbins was not far behind in field goals to his credit.

Captain "Brick" Preston played usual heady and consistent game. Marker is a dependable guard who started many clever plays on the floor. McCorkle is a floor guard, who on defense is rapid and effective. Another player who proved an asset was Dobbins.

The game was held on the only gymnasium in the city during the winter quarter.

Wanted Song

The Cache la Poux copy of the original song was found after a search of the college library.

Dramatic Club Play Big Success

"Husband's Wife," presented Friday night for the first time, was enjoyed by all. In fact, the play was so good that some people thought it was a professional production. The play was a basket ball game with teams were given the opportunity to show their acting.

Jack Mosher, as John, showed his professional interpretation of Emily Ladew took the lead among the amateur players. The change from the prim old maid to the Paris vamp was one of the best features of the acting.

Kenneth Payne as Richard Belden, did some excellent acting, though some critics thought he was not as well cast as the others. However, the play was a diffi- cult one to play gracefully.

For the first time, the audience, on and off campus, carried over to the Irish play. The unusual character of Irene Randolph, a "hypochondriac" wife, was most satisfactory and supplied the audience with some good laughs.

There were, of course, some little defects in the performance, and there were also several points worthy of special praise. There was necessity for frequent prompting but the mixed cues of one or two were due to stage fright rather than to lack of training or failure to learn lines. On the other hand most of the scenes were handled with

Teacher's Game

The teachers' game was held at Fort Collins, Colorado.

The teachers' game was held in quick succession. The teachers began to realize that they were going to come out on top. A confusion of lines on a strange floor caused the C. T. C. men some trouble. The score at the end of the first half was 16 to 10 in favor of the Aggies.

But the final score was 24 for the Aggies. The Teachers outplayed the Aggies and half, and since the Teachers did not make above three points in the game this season, this was a discredit to our team.

The most individual player in the game was Preston. He made six points. Each made six points. The game was played with only about the usual number of errors.

The lineup was as follows:

C. T. C. Aggies
Dobbins 12
Preston 6
Bliss 12
McCorkle 6
Palmer 1
Hatch 1
Marker

Remarkable scenes, which were free from either the stiffness of sentimentality often found in the plays of the past. Another feature of the play was the successful handling of the love scenes.

The play was a success. The audience was very much interested. The play was a success. The audience was very much interested. The play was a success. The audience was very much interested.

School Spirit

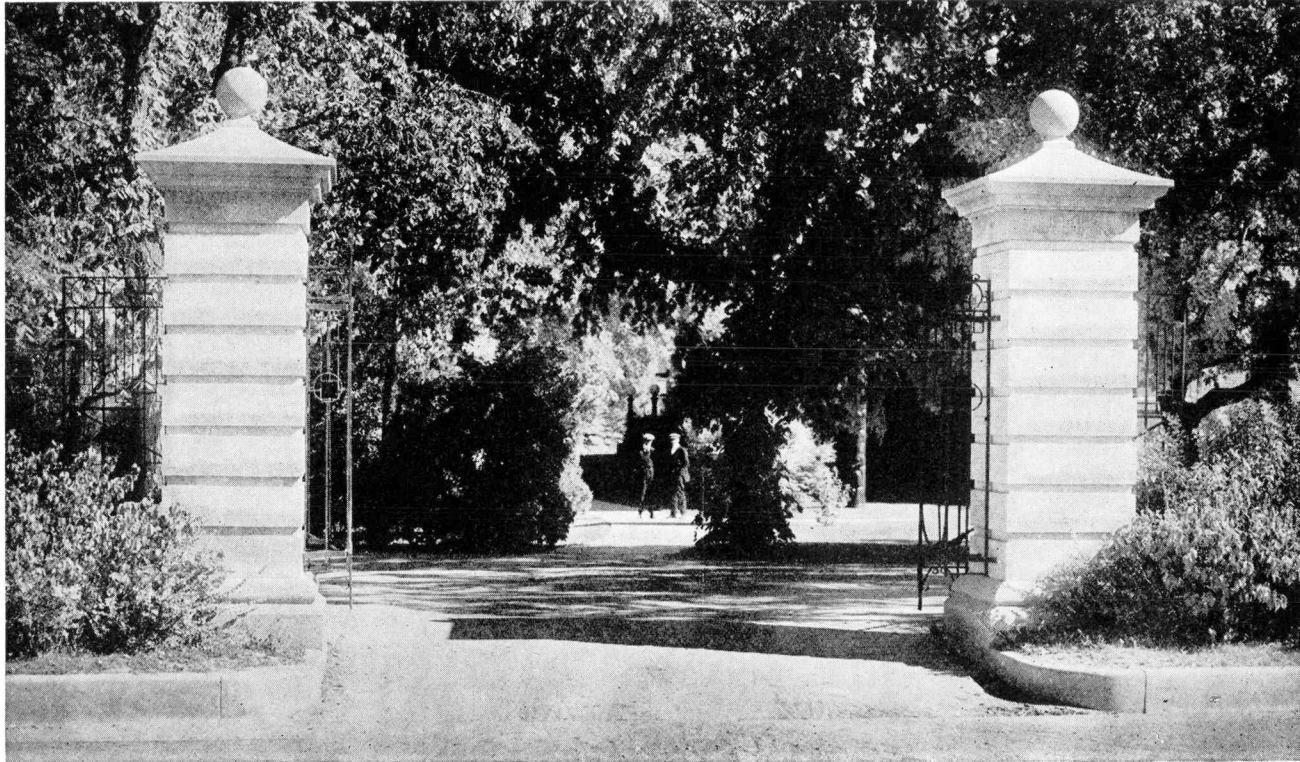

“School Spirit” is the soul—the animating principle that makes a little school great and a great school greater. It is the strange “Unknown” spoken of by the President of the Student Body and the Athletic Captain—feared by the freshmen and revered by the seniors. It is the union of young blood, young patriotism and young ideals. It is born in September, when the sunsets are scarlet and the air is laden with the incense of pine and burning brush. Its first emblem is red—the symbol of honor, of courage and of glory to be attained. Through the crisp winter days, when the north wind whistles, and the blue mountains grow old over night the spirit thrives. It tests its abode and if there are defects it glories in overcoming them. If there are none it discovers means to prevent them. The student who keeps in touch with the spirit of his school will rank high on the roll-call of the world.

Students of C. T. C., you make the spirit of your school and it rests with you whether its influence shall reach far or near or perish without the entry door.

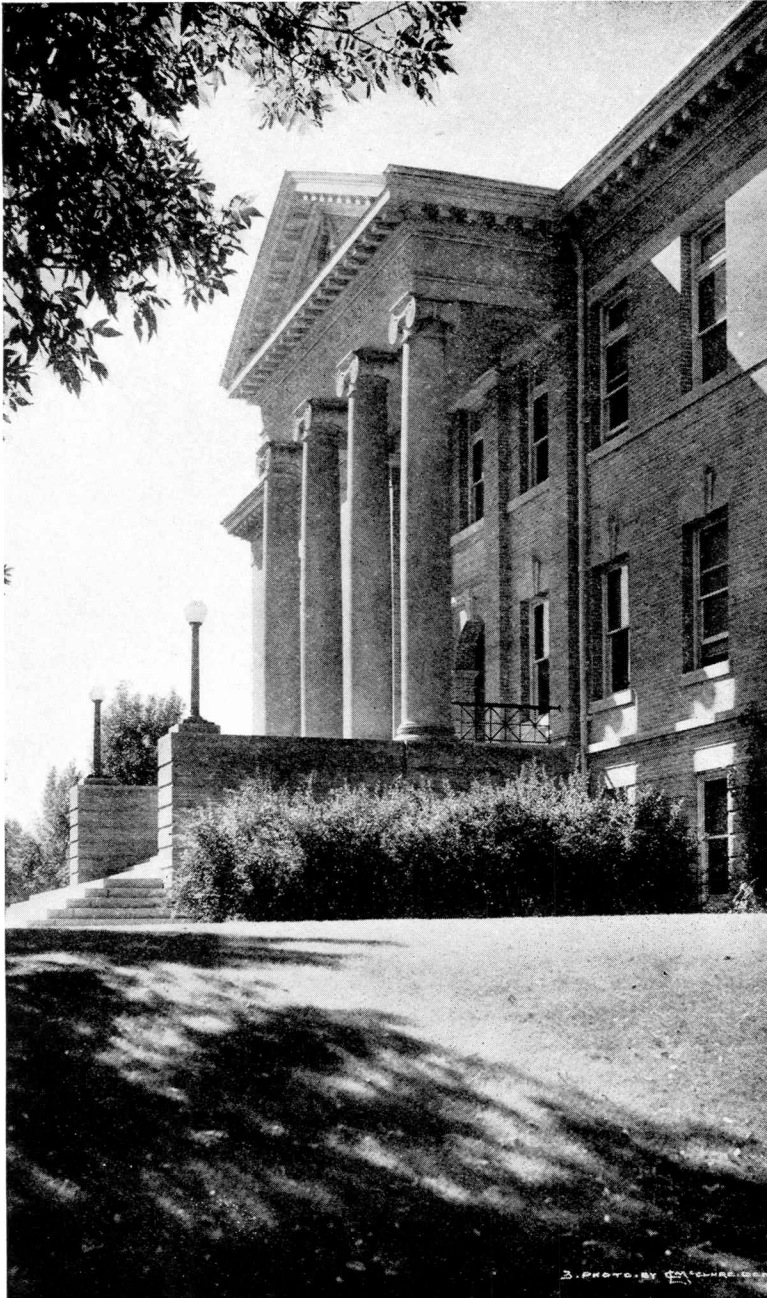

Book I
The College

*Is it at dawn, or in the star-time dim,
Thy dome breaks through the far horizon's rim,
Is it in spring or in the summer air?
I only know, my Alma Mater, thou art fair.*

*For I am minded of that early day,
When first mine eyes in greeting on thee lay,
Thy gates were opened wide to greet us all,
Who sought the gift of knowledge in thy hall.*

*Within this hall beneath thy kindly favor,
I learned the dignity and power of labor;
'Tis here the Arts and Sciences combine,
To develop and instruct the student mind.*

*In thy Treasure-House of books and ancient lore,
Thou opened up the mystic, golden door
To realms that proved a magic, wondrous sight,
And filled my soul with new and strange delight.*

*And down thy lanes, along thy shaded ways,
My steps have gone, how many golden days;
I seem to have a comrade in each tree,
For all are rooted in the heart of thee.*

*Howe'er the changing months may come or go,
Whatever tones the wind's wild trumpet blow
Thy cheeks are fair, thine eyes with beauty glow,
And thou art lovely in the winter snow.*

*Some day returning out of ways more wide,
Again thy pleasant pathways walk beside;
Seek in old haunts and old accustomed places,
Seek—and not find “the old familiar faces.”*

*And memory, pausing then to dream awhile,
Will see through dimming eyes that still must smile;
Thou art by wood and walk and hallowed hall
A presence and a power o'er all.*

Autumn

The College Campus in Autumn

(A Sonnet By Anna Scheffler Greene).

Each passing season is to me a mute,
Impassioned plea of color-tone and light,
A sensory transcription in which sight
Transcends the ear, yet stirs the self-same
lute

Whose witcheries the winter's peace unfold,
The blue, bright promise of returning spring,
And summer's green fulfillment mellowing
In autumn's Midas-miracle of gold.

O Heart of me, to Midas' curse of greed
Before so unresponsive, is it wrong
If I, consenting to a human need,
Accept the miser's challenge, waived so long,
And seek my meed of gold in autumn's creed
Of unsung hope, a song within a song?

Katherine Todd,
President of Student Body

Katherine Todd, in the position of President of the Student Body, has proved herself a leader of a character that has won for her the love, admiration, and respect of the whole Student Body, such as has not been tendered to a student leader in the past. She deserves our greatest gratitude and loyalty for her splendid work in helping us attain student government.

Katie Todd! Here's to you!

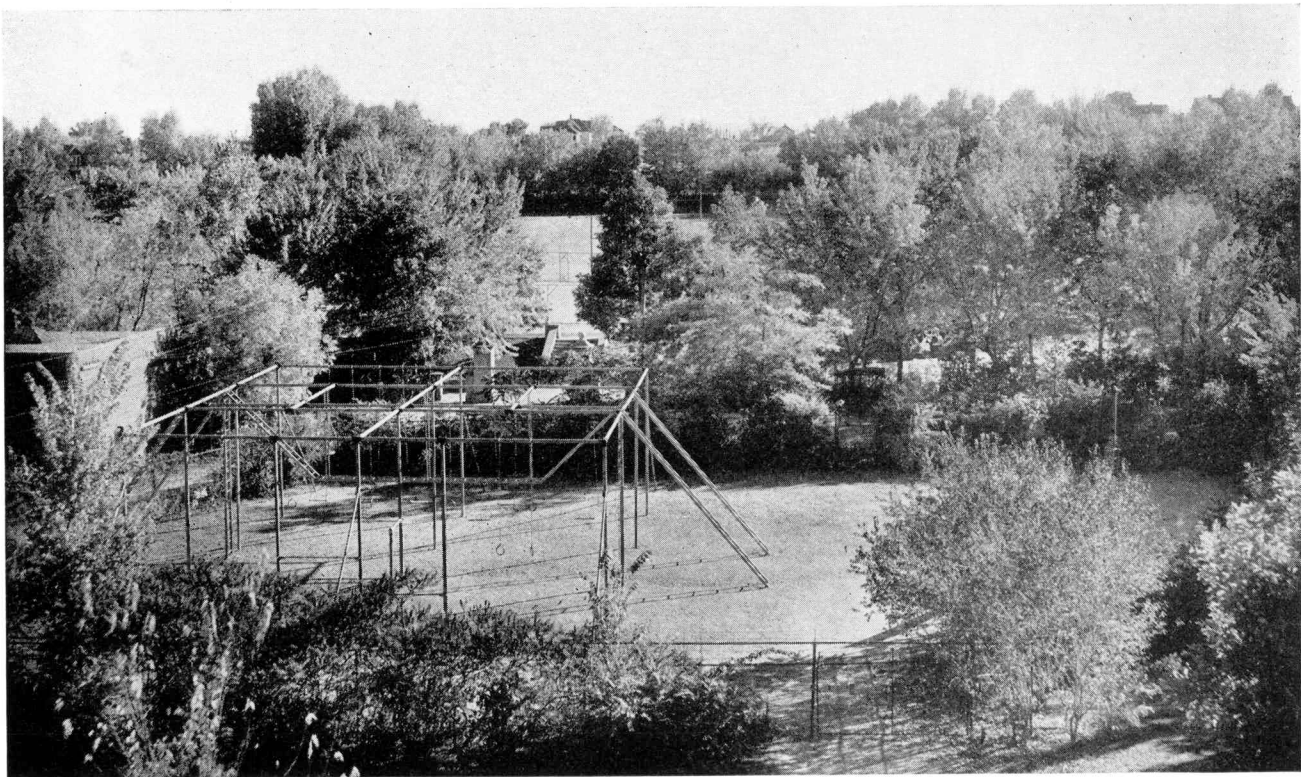

STUDENT COUNCIL

Student Council

Since the adoption of student government the responsibilities of Student Council make the selection of that body a matter for grave consideration. This year the selection proved a happy one, for the members of Student Council have been able to work and play together with equal felicity. During the long hours of discussion and concentration attendant upon the forming of a constitution and putting it into effect many strong friendships were formed, and the hours spent in Student Council meetings became hours of growth to all. The following make up Student Council:

The Graduate School

The aim of the Graduate School is to prepare leaders in scientific education. The principal aim of graduate study is the development of power of independent work, the promotion of the spirit of research, and the preparation of efficient workers in the various fields of educational activity.

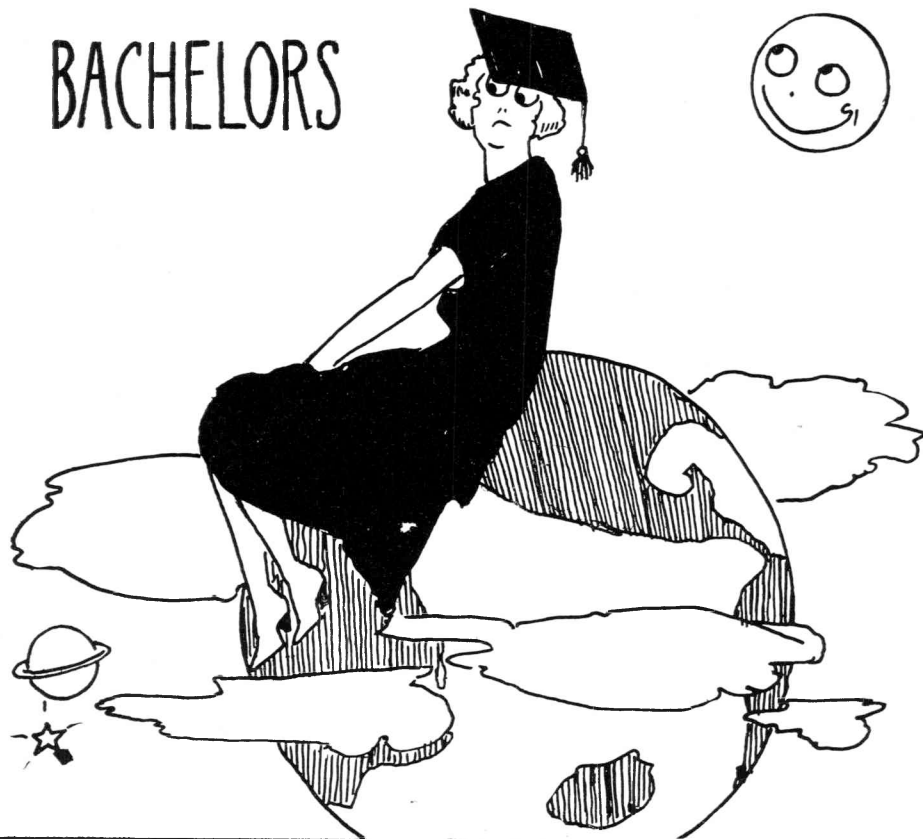

The Graduate School of Colorado Teachers' College was organized at the beginning of the Summer Term, 1913, under the direction of a special committee and the leadership of Dr. Irving E. Miller, who continued to direct its progress until the Summer Term, 1914, when his acceptance of a chair in the University of Rochester, New York, paved the way for his successor, the present dean, Dr. T. C. McCracken.

During the Summer Term, 1914, the enrollment numbered about thirty; the 1915-16 enrollment showed an increase in membership of twenty-five, with a representation from twenty-two colleges in the United States; the 1917-18 enrollment totaled sixty-eight, all resident students; the 1918-19 and 1919-20 enrollments including Summer Quarter totaled about eighty students and the year 1920-21 bids fair to exceed one hundred.

The college has been fortunate in having assigned to it for the year 1920-21, ten graduate scholarships. Even a greater number will be available for 1921-22. A graduate loan fund also will assist students to remain in college for advanced study. The many friends of the Graduate School rejoice in its growth and opportunity to serve in the field of education.

Winter Campus Snaps

Winter

By some of God's own magic
The world was changed one night,
And early morning showed us
A picture dazzling white,
The trees all drooped their branches,
The pines held coverings light
The shrubs along the pathways
Have disappeared from sight.

A sheen of sparkling snow gems,
Shot through with rose and gold,
Appeared upon the snowdrifts
When sunbeams pierced the cold.
I reached my hands to grasp them,
They danced from out my hold;
And slipped into the shadows
For fairies to enfold.

ATHLETICS

Dr. Royce R. Long

Dr. R. R. Long, head of the Department of Physical Education, is a man who possesses both the vision and ability which are essential in working out such a program as that of which we boast. Together with Mr. Search, Dr. Long has done much to make athletics a vital part of college life.

Dr. Long's particular athletic contribution of the year was through his Fumbling and Personal Combat classes for men, and through his tennis classes, the schedule calls for considerable activity on the courts this season and some interesting tournaments will be conducted.

Kenneth Perry

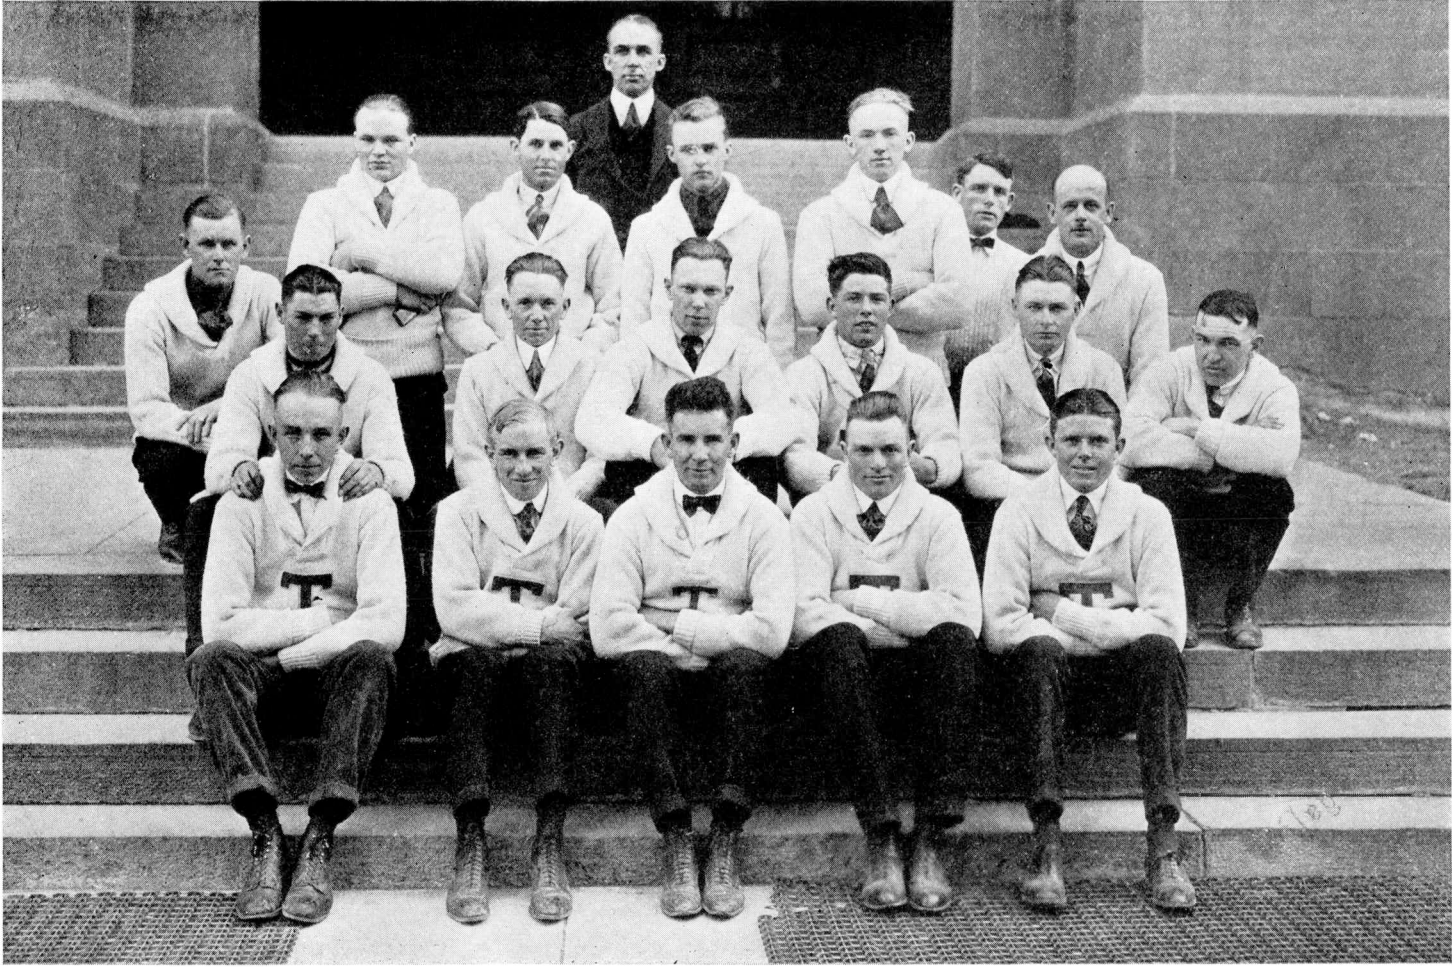

Student Manager of Athletics and Forensics

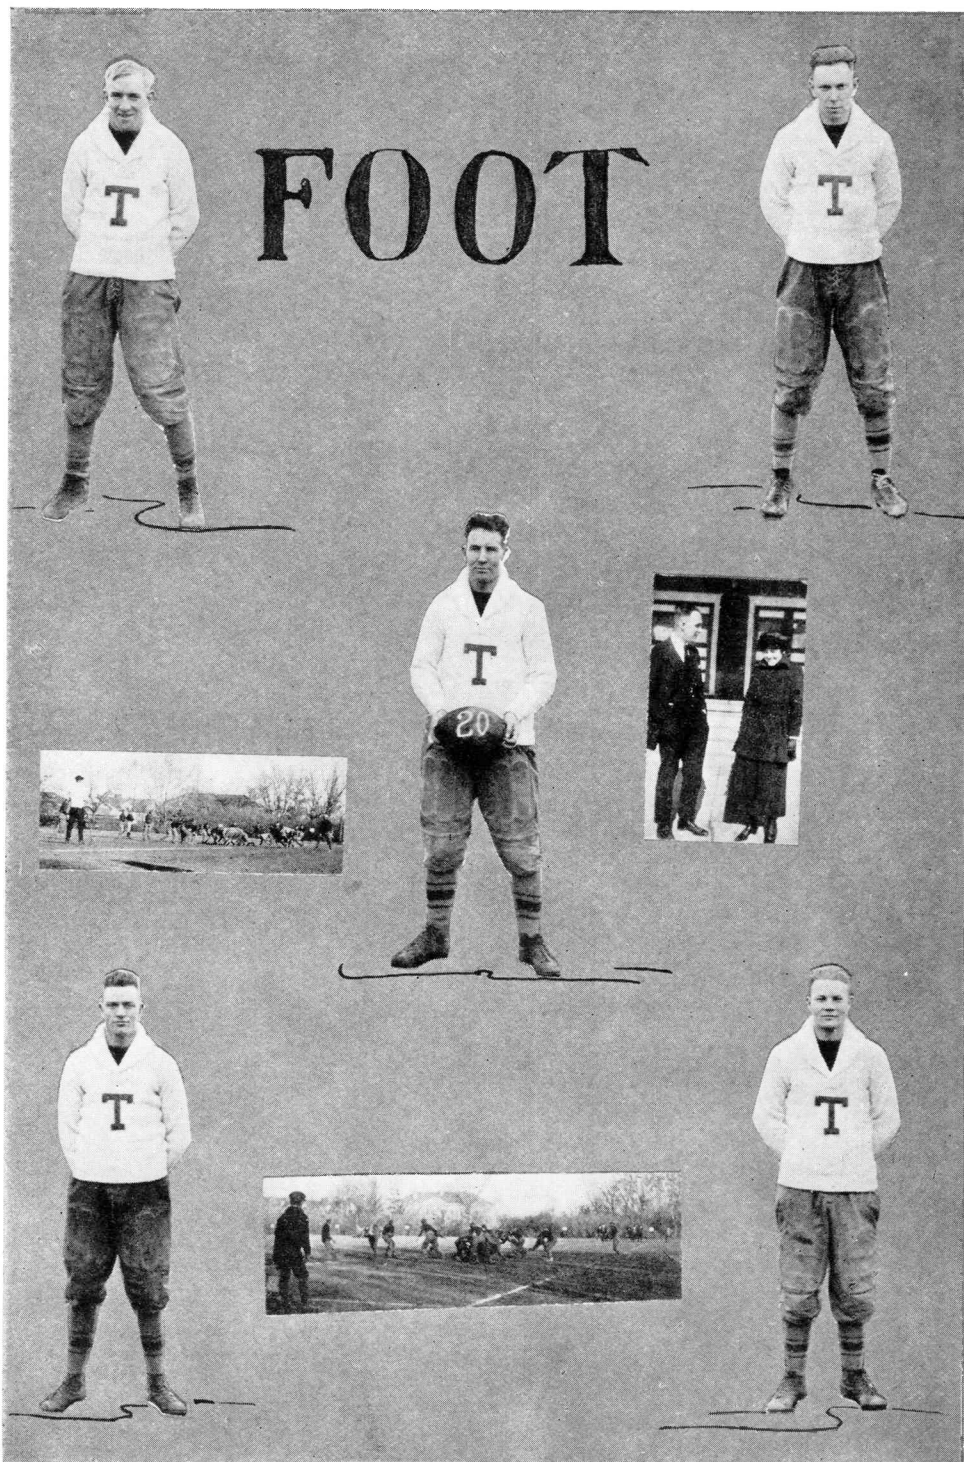

One of the most important officers provided for under the new form of Student Government, is that of Student Manager of Athletics and Forensics. Mr. Perry is a freshman this year, but he brings to us a store of interest and enthusiasm, together with a well developed business sense, which bids fair to make him one of the most valuable men C. T. C. has ever known. Mr. Perry has been chosen to direct the interests of the Student Association for next year, both in Athletics and Debating. He is equal to the work and his success is assured.

Coach William E. Search

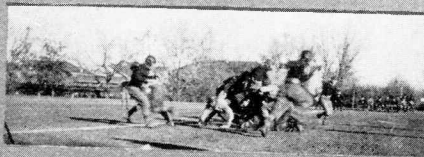

It is an established fact that a team in its playing will invariably reflect the attitude of its coach, who in the final analysis is the team. The athletic program reflects the high moral standards and ideals of the man who is putting C. T. C. on the athletic map.

A man and a gentleman in every sense of the term, Coach Search is a worthy representative of the newer school of athletic mentors whose creed is "A clean man in a clean game." Coach Search has officiated in the largest football and basketball games of the past year and is considered one of the best officials in the entire country.

BALL

Football

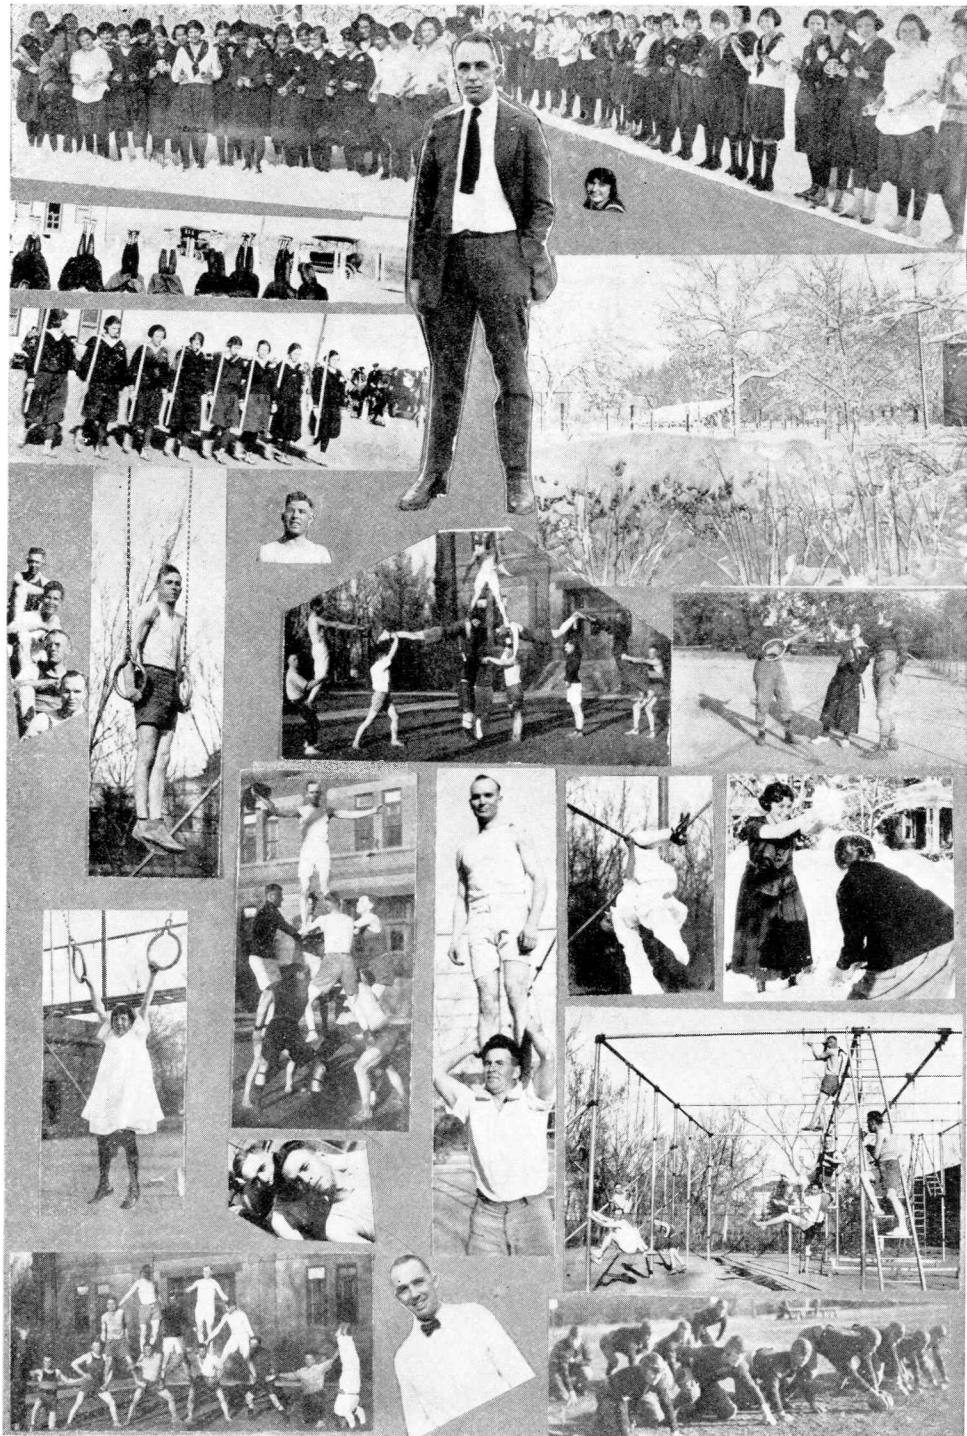

It is with no little pride that we proclaim the football season of 1920 the most successful and the team the greatest team that ever represented Teachers' College. Success is not measured by the number of games won. If it were we could be classed with the German Navy and remain hidden from view in our own little backyard. It was very apparent at the outset of the season to Coach Search, Capt. Irvin and practically every member of the squad that success would have to be measured in other terms for teams of our class are not to be found in the Rocky Mountains. Rather than play and continuously defeat inferior teams we took the alternative and attempted to batter down the proverbial brick wall. A brave attempt it was, and although a few dents was the best that we could do, we won, not victories but what has been worth far more, the respect of every opponent, loyal supporter and teammates, and the reputation of being the cleanest, gamest and hardest playing college aggregation in the Rocky Mountains.

We only had eighteen men to select from and the majority of these were green at the game but what they lacked in experience and ability they made up with spirit and hard work, giving the best that was in them to C. T. C. Captain Irvin proved an exceptionally fine leader and justified the faith that his teammates placed in him when they elected him to that position. He possessed a fighting spirit that was contagious to the rest of the men and he never let up for one minute. On defense he was the backbone of the team and proved a regular bear in backing up the line.

From the first game of the season at Fort Collins when we received our baptism by fire and lost through inexperience, to and through the last game at home when a big heavy battering ram from the Aggies again brought us to defeat, the same fighting, manly spirit was always in evidence. It was the big home game of the year against Denver University where our loyal friends saw the greatest example of it. Every one, including the Denver team, was expecting a runaway for Denver but instead to everyone's surprise Denver was forced to their limit and were indeed fortunate to win by the few points that they did. Time after time they were unable to gain the necessary distance and lost the ball, several times within a few feet of the goal. In this game Dobbins did some remarkable punting and with Brick Preston some clever open field running. The forward passing game against the University Freshman was the most spectacular work of the year and will long be remembered by all who saw it. In one instant the ball was carried nearly the whole length of the field in eight consecutive successful passes. It was in this game that Alexander came into his own. His playing on both offense and defense was a little short of phenomenal. He seemed a whole team in himself. The linemen, Marker, Carl Lawrence, Lloyd Prunty and Grant could always be relied upon to play a hard, steady game. Hank Anderson unfortunately suffered from an injured shoulder nearly the whole season. His work while in the game made everyone regret that he was unable to play all the time. End is the hardest position on the team for an inexperienced man to fill. Kelly, on snatching forward passes, and Evans' smashing interference made them both valuable men for their positions. When sweaters were awarded at the end of the season Alman, Toppin, Phelps, Perry, Leuty Prunty, Sanastead and Morgan were remembered for their faithfulness and playing whenever the opportunity was given them.

Lack of men made it impossible for us to have a second team. We were very fortunate though in having the Industrial High School under the coaching of Paul Search to practice against and no little credit is due them for the way in which they helped us throughout the entire season.

With Dobbins as captain next year and Preston and Marker the only men graduating, we can look forward to even a greater team than the one of 1921.

Basketball

The basketball season of 1920-21 was one of the most successful in the history of the college. Only ten men appeared in answer to the call issued by Coach Search early in December and by the end of the season there were only six men reporting for practice.

The season was entirely successful. The team not only won a comfortable majority of the games played, but still further developed that spirit of fair play and clean sportsmanship which is making C. T. C. famous throughout the West. The slogan of "Win, but win clean," is finding much favor with those who have the best interests of their school and of athletics at heart.

The team was remarkable chiefly because of the fact that it won games by consistent head work rather than by brilliant playing. Teamwork was developed to a point where it was at times flawless and teams were defeated which man for man were far superior.

As an example of the value of hard work in the building of athletic ability, one would search long without finding a better illustration than we had this year in the case of Mr. Marker, who played left guard on the first and only team. Not naturally gifted as a basket tosser, he held doggedly on through four years of grilling effort to emerge in his final year as a very efficient member of the first line.

McCorkle, right guard, played the fastest game of his career and was elected captain for next year. Mac is the fastest floor man ever seen on a Teacher team and is an expert point getter as well as a most efficient guard.

Bliss, at center, was a man new to college ball, and during the early part of the season found the pace uncomfortably speedy. He developed rapidly, however, and with another year of experience will undoubtedly be rated as one of the best in the State.

Dobbins, at right forward, uncovered dazzling speed with rare ability as a basket man. This was Dobbins' first year in college company, and we expect great things of him next year.

Captain Brick Preston played a rare game at left forward. Lack of forward material necessitated his shifting from guard position in which he had acquired a position second to none in the State. But with unusual skill and adaptability, he settled into his new position and played a faultless game throughout the season. His ceaseless energy and unflinching good humor, together with his sterling ability as a player made him the backbone of the team, and one of the most successful captains in the history of the game.

Alexander, our only sub-guard, had never played basketball before, but gives great promise as a guard next year.

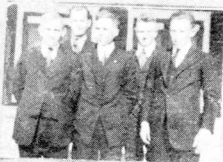

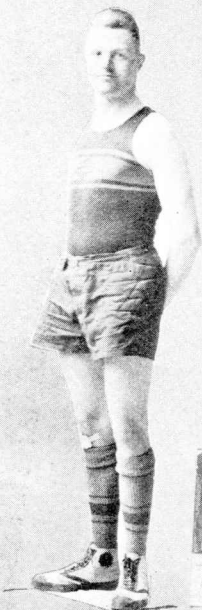

Two members of the team—Preston and Marker—will not be in school next year, we are sorry to lose them, for both represent the best in athletics. Marker is an excellent example of the clean, hard working type of athlete who makes the game worth while, and Preston being an ideal student and athlete is without doubt, the fastest defensive player C. T. C. has ever produced.

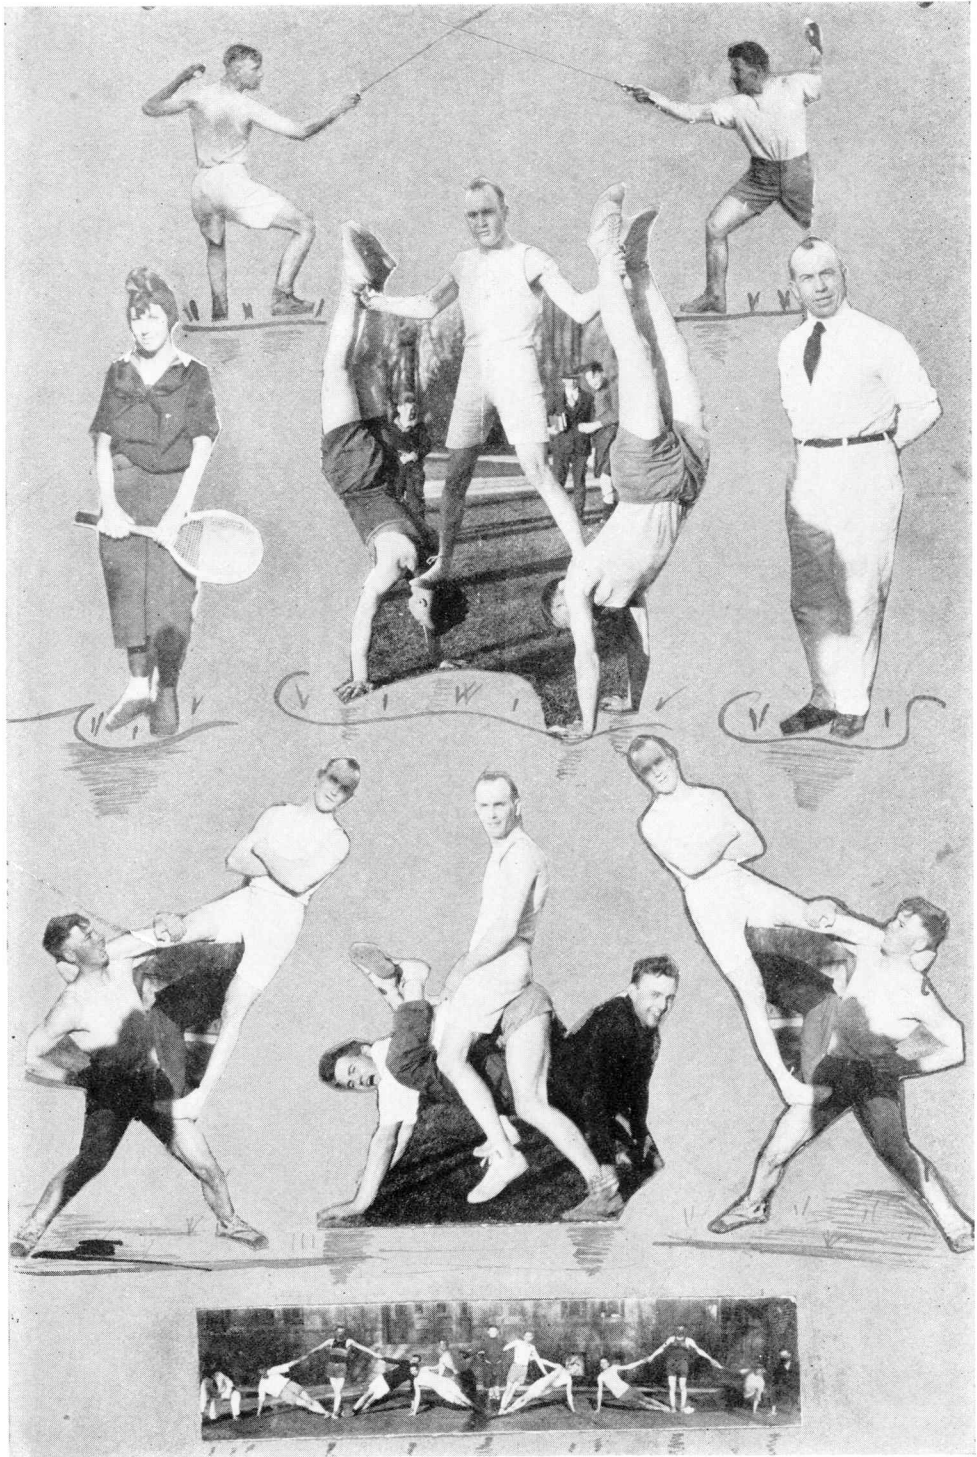

The team scored a grand total of 389 points while the total scores of their opponents amounted to 213—a comfortable margin. Basketball is the one major sport in which we can successfully compete with the other large colleges and universities of the State, and we hope to see the game better supported in the future, both by student and townspeople than has been the case in past years.

Freshman Frisk

"I'm going to the Freshman Frisk, are you?"

This question was one which challenged everyone in the college during the first week of the fall term, for everywhere was scattered the little green tags, bearing the announcement of the finest frolic of the school year.

The luscious home-cooked supper served in the Greek Theater caused the wee freshmen a pang of homesickness. But this feeling was soon replaced with a thrill and a heart throb, as the wonderful lantern procession started across the campus with five hundred lusty voices singing the praise of C. T. C.

The snake dance, the bonfire out on the spacious athletic field, the school songs and the speeches were perfect and afforded the freshman a taste of the fun of real college life.

Faculty Receptions

A deep, dark mystery enfolds our noble institution. An event of almost inconceivable importance has occurred in our midst. The "Receiving line" has disappeared from the school.

One of the innovations of the year was the change in the manner of conducting the quarterly faculty receptions, so that the "Receiving line" made up of dignified faculty members arrayed in "Silks and Satins" and "Soup and Fish" costumes, has given way to small groups of faculty members and students acting as committees of welcome. We regret, in a way, the disappearance of our terrorizing, awe inspiring receiving line. Remember the thrill it gave you when you passed down that line from one smiling teacher to another? When you started out at the head of the line with a perfectly good respectable name like "Robinson" and ended up with the perfectly horrible conglomeration of every letter in the alphabet and which was pronounced by the smiling Mr. Finley as "Gloubsihson."

Fun tho, wasn't it? Then the dance over in the old green gym. Here again we experienced that same lovable thrill when Mr. Wright asked us to dance just when Hunt's Orchestra was playing our favorite Naughty Waltz.

The Faculty Reception is certainly an event without which no quarter of the year would be begun right, nor complete without it.

Colonial Party

The Colonial Party is always one of the most important of the annual events. But this year Washington's Birthday was celebrated with more jollity than ever before.

George and Martha Washington were hosts at a wonderful birthday party given at their home in the Club House. The guests were assembled from every walk of life. This fact shows us that the "Father of Our Country" was surely a democratic man, for mingling with the handsomely clad lords and ladies of the colonial "Four Hundred" were negro mammies of the darkest color. In fact, I observed sitting on the staircase a handsome lord in a satin costume holding the hand of a slender slip of a negro girl dressed in a calico gown with a red bandanna around her head.

The refreshments were delicious, the entertainment committee put on a very interesting program and the square dance, while oceans of fun, proved to us the startling fact that the lords and ladies were a little out of practice in the characteristic dances of their colony.

Nevertheless we had a royal good time and our only regrets is that Washington was not "Born Twins."

Inaugural Ball

There was no Inaugural Ball at Washington this year, but we were fortunate enough to have one here. It was under the auspices of the Sophomore Class, and was a most decided success.

Excellent music, plenty of good "eats," and a hard-working committee combined to make the affair one of the most enjoyable of the year. Those students who did not care to dance were well provided for at the club house, so a good time was possible for everyone. To the class of '23 we concede the honor of having conducted the best class "stunt" of the year.

Freshman Dance

"Don't be delaying, the orchestra is playing, the whole world is saying, 'On with the dance.'" Who could resist such summons as they were wafted out upon the cool evening air by the strains of Melvins' String Orchestra, enticing the happy boys and girls to come and enjoy the Freshman Dance April 29? And, few there were who disregarded the call. For the hall, decorated prettily in the combined colors of the school, lavender and gold, and those of the Freshman Class, yellow and white, furnished an inviting scene to those who enjoy "tripping the light fantastic toe." The jazzy measures, which were played by the musicians, were the cause of many toes that were tripped that night, and due to the influence of happy hearts and gay music, they were easily regarded as "light and fantastic." The refreshments, consisting of delicious ice, cake and mints, carried out in the class colors of yellow and white, were served between dances. Then the happy couples glided off again to the dreamy strains of a waltz, or the fast enticing notes of a fox-trot.

Late in the evening a crowd of tired but contented boys and girls left the Training School. Few realized that the good management of the dance and the effort and time of those in charge were largely responsible for the enjoyable evening. But the haunting refrain of some melody remained with the dancers as they wended their way homeward and "Wrapping the drapery of their couches about them, lay down to pleasant dreams."

Friendship Dinner

In the blossom-strewn Cafeteria, on Saturday evening, April 30th, the religious organizations met, banqueted and made merry together in a Friendship Dinner. The guest of honor was Miss Mary Eliza Clark, traveling secretary of the Presbyterian church.

Over one hundred and fifty college students were present at the dinner. Doctor George Barker acted as toastmaster, introducing the toasters of the evening. The toast was cleverly worked out with "What Plant We in the Apple Tree?" as the subject. The different parts of the apple tree were taken as subjects for the various toasts and each part, the seed, the bud, the fruit, were interpreted in terms of Friendship and its meaning. The first toast of the "Seed" was given by Dewey Marker, representing the Y. M. C. A.; the toast of the "Bud," was given by Miss Elsie Jamieson, representing the Y. W. C. A.; the toast of the "Flowers" was given by Miss Belinda Salazar, representing the Newman Club; the final toast was given by Miss Mary Eliza Clark. Her subject was the fruit of the tree of friendship.

The Friendship Dinner is a means for getting together all the religious organizations, at least once a year, around a friendly "board" to make a little closer the friendly feeling that already exists among these organizations.

Was told by the Faculty Players in the college number of the Lyceum Course.

DRAMATIC CLUB PUTS IT ACROSS

"Her Husband's Wife" Swells Hoover Relief Fund

The three-act farce, "Her Husband's Wife," by A. E. Thomas, was the second production staged under the auspices of the Dramatic Club. The performance took place in the College Chapel on March 8th. The cast included town and college players and was exceptionally well chosen. The net proceeds were turned over to the committee in charge of the drive for the Hoover Relief Fund.

The Dramatic Club of Agriculture College have staged Shakespeare's "Hamlet" with much success. They will bring their play to Teachers' College the 12th of May.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Occupants of Car Seriously Injured—Beautiful Wife Asks Courts to Protect Her.

SCANDAL AMONG THE SACRED

It looked bad and sounded worse until the woman took command of the situation, which she did most efficiently in "A Woman's Way," the Spring Quarter production of the Dramatic Club, presented in the College Chapel on May 13th. The play was managed and directed by the cast itself. Miss Edith Stephens assisted as coach and Mr. Kaminski was responsible for the effective stage setting.

FOOTBALL AND DUNSANY

The football men of the college under the direction of Prof. E. B. Kaminski, gave a most interesting entertainment when they presented three plays by Lord Dunsany on April 22 in the College Chapel. Proceeds were turned over to the Athletic Association.

The officers of Dramatic Club are:

Katharine Todd, president; E. Pickard, vice-president; Ida Davis, secretary; George Irvin, manager and treasurer; Edith Stephens, publicity manager.

QUESTION BOX

Has Freeman had previous experience? He understands so well a married man's point of view.

Why are Miss McLane and Miss Ommanney so frequently referred to in connection with the Dramatic Club Scrap Book?

CLASS PLAY

The supreme dramatic event of the college year was "The Charm School," presented under the auspices of the Graduating Classes at the Sterling Theater during Commencement Week. The play was managed by Mr. George Irvin.

"The Charm School" has never been staged in the West before, and under the auspices of the college it bids fair of being a huge success.

Pi Kappa Delta is a national honorary forensic society with chapters in colleges in all parts of the United States. The Colorado Beta Chapter was organized in 1918 and has been a live growing organization ever since.

In the spring of 1920 the chapter sent two delegates to the national convention at Morningside College and it is planning to do as well at the next biennial meeting to be held in 1922.

So far the society has confined its activities to the field of debating. In this field it has made a record of which it has a right to be proud. The men have engaged in six debates and have won them all. The women have held twelve debates and have won nine of them.

This year the men formed a triangle with Colorado Agricultural College and University of Wyoming. The debates were held on February 24 and 25 and our teams won the decision on both sides of the question.

The women extended their regular triangle to include Denver University thus forming a quadrangle. They met Denver University at Greeley and Colorado Agricultural College at Fort Collins, March 23, defeating both teams.

The men's teams this year were Cyrus Albertson, Eric Smith, Ralph Erwin and Wells Smith, John Brunstein, Robert Davis.

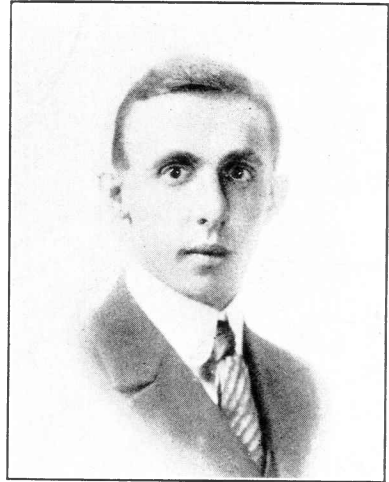

The women's teams were Mae Tomas, Hazel Brown, and Nora Roop, Esther Wassaw.

Ten new members have been taken into Pi Kappa Delta this year.

The Ideal Student

What should a Teacher's College require of the ideal man or woman? The answer is found in the characters of Cyrus Albertson and Edna McCarty, who this year were elected as the nearest to the ideal type in C. T. C. In scholarship these two people stand at the top. In their relations with their fellow students they are democratic. They are known for their dependability, tell "Cy" or Edna to do a thing, and presto! It is done. Not only do they fulfill the academic requirements but they are active in all college affairs. They show love and loyalty to their Alma Mater by doing their utmost to make every worthy project carried on in her name a success. They are possessed of unlimited pep—that elusive quality of getting things done well—and their personalities are marked by a healthy optimism, a broad minded way of looking at all questions, and an attitude of warm human sympathy toward all those whom they come in contact.

Both are leaders in religious activities. Their work is done unostentatiously, with no thought of public recognition, and they receive their reward, not in offices held, but in work well done. That their places be as well and as deservedly filled in next year's Cache La Poudre is the best thing we can ask for the college and for the Student Association. A hearty "Viva La" for Albertson and McCarty!

SPRING

Spring

*Up rose King Winter as he heard
The first faint harebell ring.
"Tis time for me to go," said he,
"When they begin to sing.
I hear my daughter's dancing feet
Come tripping or the lea,
I feel her kiss upon my brow,
My duty's done, I see."
A soft breeze swayed the cradle bed
Of infant buds asleep,
And e'er they scarce had ope'd their eyes
To blossom seemed to leap.
On new born wings the butterfly
The golden sunbeams seeks
At Zephyrs kiss, the primrose nods
With blushes on her cheeks.
And Spring, with laughing, trilly notes
Wakes all the birds to song.
But oh, thou child of Joyousness,
Thou cans't not last for long.
As fleet art thou as dewy rose,
From bud thou bloom'st then die.
But all the gladness of thy birth
Smiles down from Summer sky.*

GREEKS

Kappa Delta Pi

Kappa Delta Pi, a national educational honor fraternity, was inaugurated by Dr. W. C. Bagley, of Teachers' College, Columbia University in 1911. Its object is to invest fittingly the teaching profession with the dignity of a great calling; to pledge its members to a higher type of service in that calling; and to insure them in their labors the moral and intellectual support which is the inevitable consequent of a union of many minds imbued with identity of ideal and purpose.

In accordance with these fundamental principles of the fraternity, eligibility to membership is determined by scholastic attainment, distinctive service in the educational field, and acceptable social qualifications. Membership in Kappa Delta Pi implies responsibility for the preservation of educational ideals and achievements, which constitute one of the most dependable guarantees of the continuity of civilization; a habitual attitude of open-mindedness toward truth and science; a cheerful willingness to toil and make sacrifices commensurate with the great end to be attained; and an ever-abiding spirit of fraternal loyalty, not only to fellow-members, but to humanity.

Theta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi was installed at Colorado State Teachers' College March 13, 1920, and has an active membership of twenty-one at the present time.

PAN HELLENIC

Pan Hellenic

The Pan Hellenic Committee is composed of two members from each Greek letter sorority in the school. It has its officers and holds meetings in the conventional manner.

The purpose of Pan Hellenic is to settle all difficulties that may arise among the sororities or between the school and the sororities.

Pan Hellenic must recognize and approve any group of girls, their moral and intellectual standing, who may wish to organize a Greek letter sorority in this institution.

Pan Hellenic endeavors to elevate ideals of the school and tries to promote a general good feeling of democracy among the students.

The keynote of the Lambda Gamma Kappa Fraternity is "Brotherhood." The full meaning of this word is not learned until the tests of obedience, endurance, self-sacrifice, development of the social side in relation to life, hard work in school and for the fraternity, the while acting like a man, are passed. Lambda Gamma Kappa life prepares each member to pass these tests one hundred per cent.

Newman Club

The purpose of the Catholic Students' Association of America is to promote loyalty to the Catholic faith and fellowship and co-operation among the Catholic students. The Newman Club is the branch of this Association in Colorado State Teacher's College. The membership which has now reached the number of forty-two is double that of the preceding year.

The meetings of the club have been held weekly. At each gathering regular club business claimed a portion of the time, the remainder of the time being devoted to Bible Study. During the year several social functions were given by the Newman Club, the first of these being a tea for the new students. A Cantata for the purpose of raising funds for the club was given May 6th. The club also took a prominent part in the Freshman Frisk, Christmas Party, Nativity Play and Colonial Party, activities conducted by school organizations for the benefit of the student body. By means of a drive conducted by the religious organizations of the school, including the Newman Club, it was possible to eliminate all the dues and extra fees which had heretofore been necessary to the maintenance of these organizations.

The Kindergarten Club

The Kindergarten Club, which has been in existence in C. T. C. for several years, was reorganized this fall under the supervision of Miss Lyford, the faculty advisor.

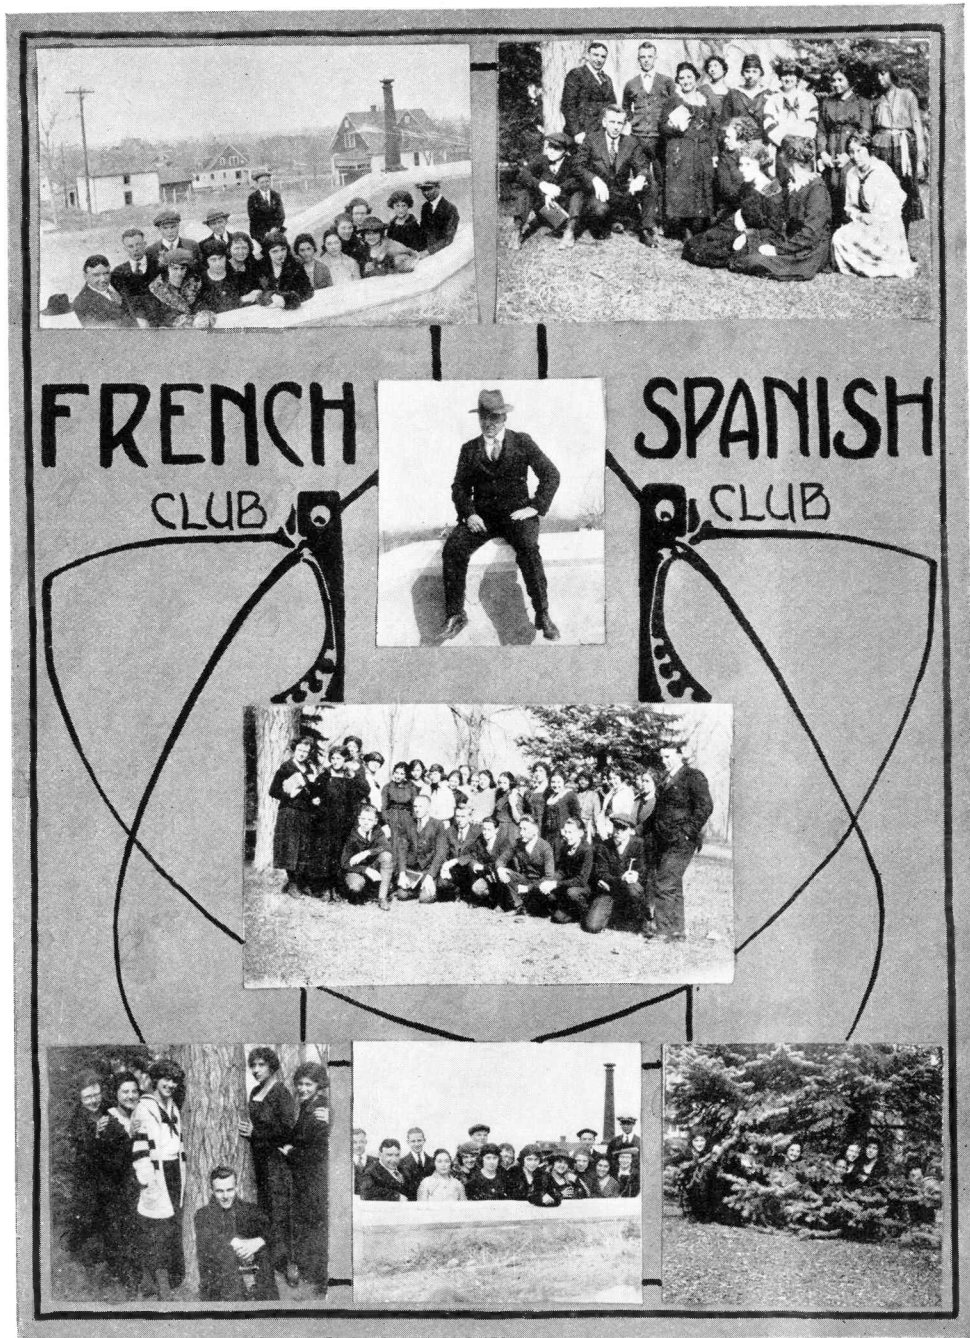

Besides holding business meetings once a month, the club has enjoyed one large function during the year; the Kindergarten Club Juvenile Party, which proved a great success.

This year the club also selected a club pin which they hope will be the legal badge for the Kindergarten Club for many years.

The purpose of the club is to present to the music majors practical problems in the field of school music and to develop an appreciation for the best in music.

During the year Mrs. Southart gave a wonderful program of ultra modern music. Miss Newman gave a very interesting talk on "The Power of Music."

Social times are enjoyed and the party given at Christmas time was a most delightful one.

Bible Study Under the Greeley Plan

Colorado State Teachers' College is nationally known for this plan of Bible Study. In the year 1910 the churches of Greeley co-operated with the college in order that students might receive college credit for work done in Bible Classes.

This year the enrollment has been better than ever before. About 200 students took advantage of the opportunity at hand and attended these classes throughout the year. The work this year was a survey of Old Testament history. Enthusiasm and interest was shown not only in class work but in other activities as well. A most beautiful pageant entitled, "Deborah," was an illustration of the work being done by the members of the several classes. In addition to this the classes were organized and from time to time enjoyed many social pleasures.

The teachers and presidents were as follows:

Teacher Mrs. Church
President Gertrude Bryson

President Glalys Rice

The purpose of the club is to encourage the art of story telling in its relation to education.

The group study has been the main interest of the work this year. A delightful program was given in April showing their efforts, each group taking one part in the development of the story. An interesting party was given in February when all came dressed as some story character.

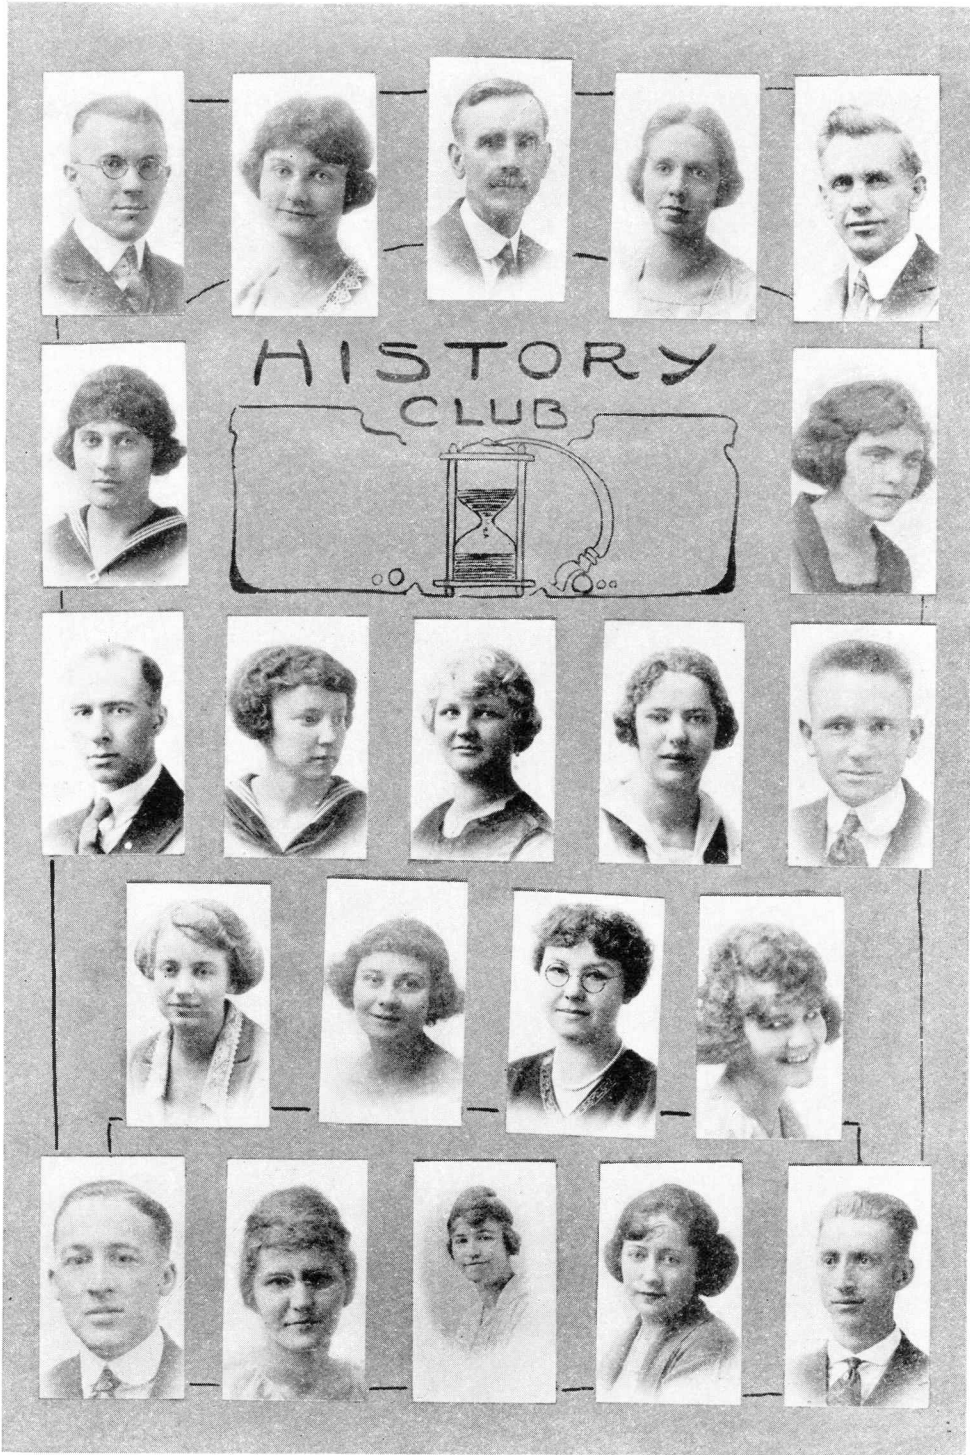

The greatest accomplishment of the club this year has been the story telling work in the Training School. The noon hour was made a story hour. Each day a member of the club would tell stories to the children who remained at the building at this time.

Stephani Schutzi made his second trip to Teachers' College in December and gave two splendid entertainments.

The Commercial Club

The Commercial Club of the State Teachers' College was organized several years ago for the purpose of uniting more closely those students interested in commercial work. Meetings are held once a month, and monthly "rambles" are also taken through various places of business. Some of the places visited this year were the Canning Factory, Beet Sugar Factory and the Court House.

The Social meetings this year have also been very interesting and enjoyable, and the club has become a vital and worth-while factor in the college life of commercial majors.

The big event of the year is the annual Spring picnic at which time the club visits one of the largest establishments at Denver.

Modern Will's

A Literary Coffee House of the Twentieth Century

The Modern Will's is an organization which started last year with a small number of girls interested in the study of modern literature, and has this year a large and ever growing membership.

The club, as its name indicates, carries out the idea of the eighteenth century Will's Coffee House, and informality is its keynote.

The membership was divided into five different groups: Poetry, drama, short story, essay and magazine articles; very interesting and entertaining programs were given by the member of these groups.

Never has the club had such a lively membership, or such happy times as were spent around the open fireplace in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cross this past year. An atmosphere of general good fellowship has permeated these informal meetings.

Mathematics Club

The Mathematics Club of Colorado State Teachers' College was founded October 26, 1914 to increase interest in the study of mathematics and to create a good time socially among its members. The first meeting was called by order of Professor Finley. The first president was Miss Irene Pauly.

The regular meetings for the past year have been held the first Thursday of each month. The following subjects are some of the topics on which we have had interesting talks and discussions: Analytic and geometrical proofs of law of tangents, mathematical recreation, stunts and puzzles, the pythagorean proposition, astronomical discussions. Mr. Finley brought us a fine report from the Rocky Mountain Section of the Mathematical Association of America. This association is to meet in Greeley next year.

One of the many good times we had the past year was the evening spent in the Prunty home. The Club members were taken to the country home in cars. The meeting was most enjoyable.

The event which is looked forward to by all is the annual picnic at Weley's Grove. This is the last meeting of the school year and is long remembered by all who attend.

Summer

*O Litany of trees and trailing vines,
Live, velvet grass that beckons to the feet,
And the blue rendezvous where the prayers of pines
With God in sunny understanding meet,
Oft have you voiced my thoughts, when awe or sense
Of littleness inhibited expression,
Or joy of being held me tingling, tense,
O'er leaping its own struggle for confession.
My Litany, should vandal ages fling
Upon your heart the dream-dust of repose,
Then for the kiss of your awakening
I pray that some blithe bird may trill a rose
Whose crimson dedication shall restore
Your stilled Magnificat for evermore.*

THE GILLYPOLOOSA BIRD

The Gillypuloosa bird lives in the Sahara desert where it is extremely hot and dry. A thick blanket of feathers filters the sun's rays in such a way that the body of the bird is at a temperature of about 200 degrees below zero. Its color is all the colors of the rainbow and a lot of others that are not commonly seen, either in the rainbow or anywhere else and for that reason they are comparable to nothing now known on the earth.

It lays square eggs in the rivers which sink to the bottom and are hatched by the crocodiles. The young live under the water until they are full-feathered; then they rise out of the water and fly into the desert to live on the dense grass that grows in that region and that accounts for the color of the red feather in its tail.

Its feathers resemble frog hair in color and composition but it is dense and heavy as lead mercury, but this only aids its speed. They have two feathers in their tail, one red and the other yellow, and they fly backwards to keep the sand out of their eyes, soaring to great heights where they feed on the moss that grows in the atmosphere above the clouds.

They have no wings but have webbed feet somewhat like a gold fish's tail, which they manipulate in such a way so swiftly, often so swiftly, that they cannot be seen, which fact accounts for the extreme rarity of their appearance; it also accounts for the fact that none have ever been shot or photographed.

Where they came from or what is their origin is unknown except as has just been narrated. The only specimen ever observed was seen by Prof. Kaminski when he led an army into Lapland to conquer the Fiji Islanders, who revolted there. So far their only practical value has been to adorn certain pages in the Cache La Poudre.

A blush creeps up a girl's face because if it ran up it would kick up too much dust.

EVERY LITTLE SENTENCE HAS A MEANING ALL ITS OWN

The next time ole Joe Dobbins goes to Gunnison we're gonna send a squadron of school-marms to guard our darling and guide his tooties in the path of righteousness. The story goes that when the basketball team went to show our little brother Normal School how to play, little Joe had the tables turned on him. For lo! The village vampire marked him for her own and vamped him to a frazzle, and played circles around the Flying Parson.

If you want to make a hit with Kathryn Casey, just wander up to her at the next dance and growl—"Say, Keed, kin I lean on your frame for the next twist?"

What color hair will that sorority wear next year? Probably it will be shaded to match their galoshes.

The fellows tell us that Dick Allman is getting so darned lazy that he has to have a stool to sit on while he takes his shower bath.

Talking of inconsistency, what's the use of having the Libe closed for Chapel and Association meetings as long as Dan's store is left open?

HEY, LARRY ???

We suggest that the Delta Sigs get a time clock and have Kenneth Perry punch it every time he has a date. Otherwise they might miss one.

What we would call real co-operation is when the Student Manager of Athletics and Forensics (Wells Smith take note), uses his Forensics on Student Council to get money for Athletics.

Bill Wrinkle actually had the nerve to kid Dewey Marker and Mary Bowden the other day for fussing in the Library.

Do you think Esther Jones will make an Ernest preacher's wife?

Dear Enemies—Irma Madaraz and George Irvin.

Gosh! Wouldn't it be awful if George Irvin got his left arm broken and couldn't make a speech?

It's a darn shame how hard up the Tri Sigs are this spring. Imagine the poor dears cutting the flowers out of their cretonne curtains to trim their scanty little unbleached muslin dresses. And there couldn't have been more than a yard and a quarter in each frock.

It's awfully hard to tell those two Pi Kappa Sigmas that don't wear red middies and curl their hair from the girls that belong to other sororities.

Another thing we'd like to know is who is going to be the Lambda Gamma patrons next year?

Along with the "Keep Off the Grass" sign on the campus we ought to put "Don't Chase the Chickens."

And after all why shouldn't one bring the man one goes with from the University of Colorado to talk to the student body of which one is president?

Neither can we understand how Margaret Sheridan happens to be teaching Julius Caesar in the eighth grade. We thought he was in high school.

We can't figure out whether girls don't marry because they are school teachers or are school teachers because they don't marry.

We also wonder where Kenny Perry and Erle Ingle got the habit of reaching for their ribs every time they say anything funny.

Katherine Todd tried to tell us the other day that the Milo Violets of which she was speaking was the name of the corsage she wore to the Delt formal. "Yes—is it?"

Would you call that bunch of wops that hold up the wall along the main hall of the Ad Building around chapel time "Walnuts?"

The Gold Dust Twins: Chloe Barney and Dewey Darling.

You're a man after me own heart," said Florence King, when McCorkle handed over his best sweater.

They say that Cy Albertson got that Still he used in Professor Bowers' trial April 1, out of the basement of the Methodist church.

A LEISURE MOMENT

It was one Saturday night in May that I was standing alone before a small body of water watching it move slowly as the dim light shone on it, making the little ripples look like pretty colored stripes. I hesitated a moment before plunging in.

Suddenly I noticed a small white object bobbing up and down in the water as if it were going to sink at any moment. As I stood there watching this thing, I was greatly concerned, wondering if it would reach the other side or sink. It didn't occur to me at the time to plunge in after it because I was fascinated in watching to see if its fate were "sink or swim," "survive or perish."

Just for a little excitement I threw something at it to see if a slight disturbance in the water might cause it to sink. As the water splashed up, it completely covered this interesting object. I watched so long that I thought it surely would not reappear, and on hearing a weird sleepy sounding voice call to me to hurry I turned to see if some one might be coming. Apparently no one was near so all that was left for me to do was to dive in. As I turned to do so I noticed that the white object had come to the surface.

The cake of Ivory Soap was hitting the other side of the bath tub.

Frosh.—Do you know that fellow over there?

Soph.—Ya, he sleeps next to me in political science.

A LESSON IN ENGLISH

"You see a beautiful girl walking down the street. She is of course, feminine.

If she is singular, you are nominative.

You walk across to her, changing the verbal and then becoming dative.

If she is not objective, you become plural.

You walk home together. Her mother is accusative and you become imparative.

You walk in and sit down. Her little brother is an indefinite article.

You talk of the future. She changes the subject. You kiss her and she becomes masculine.

Her father becomes present, things are tense, and you become the past participle."—Spectator.

The only course in which some fellows will ever graduate—is the course of time.

THE HECTIC HUNT FOR A HENNA HAIR-NET

Handsome, harum-scarum, Mr. Heaton, heaved a heavy sigh at her harsh heartlessness and with a haggard look of hintense pain yelped—

“How can I regain her approval?”

Having hazarded an heye in her direction he stood like a hypnotized hare and ventured huskily—

“Hi ham going hence to the hamlet, hit would make me heavenly happy if you would forget your huff and cease hurling those haughty, hot hostile glances at me. Hallow me to soothe your harrowed feelings and make harmony where heinous hymns of hate reign. Let me bring you something, to you ha cienda, a hyacinth, or a handkerchief, most hadorable and honorable humming bird.”

“Hie hither,” she hiddes with histrionic hilariousness, “and hobtain a henna hair net.”

Our handsome, hapless hero shot her a humid but hygenic glance and hurtled, “Oh Hades.” Into the Hatmosphere but hastily hover came his haggitation.

Hall was clear hon the horizon. Our hero felt as happy as a hawk in a chicken coop—a hare on a holiday. He felt he held the earth in the hollow of his hand. He was honored to act as henchman for such a heart-breaking hilarious Hibernian heart snatcher.

He rushed headlong, helter-skelter to heckle with some haughty hair net seller in hopes that he might be her better half. He walks into Woolworths and heralds his approach by a hollow honk. Hairnet Hettie hears his harbinger and looks up hexpecting to see a health seeker; a hoary hearse candidate. Who should hit her heye but the Herculean husky from of Mr. Heaton.

“Hello,” she heaved, “What have? Habliments, handsprings, handkerchiefs, or haberdashery?”

Hypnotized he huddled as if shaken by a hurricane and fairly howled, “Hist Hettie this is no hallucination—no huge hoary hackneyed joke—no hocus pocus but an honest attempt to get a helpmate by purchasing a hair net. The visage of my heavenly honey haunts me. I would hazard everything to get her a hair net, a brunette—no a henna net for my hirish haburn lassie who hawaitis me.”

“Humbug, huge joke,” howls Hettie, hooting like a hyena.

“Park your hammer—henter one horn,” yaps Heaton—harshly with a hard-boiled expression. “I harbor none of your freshness Hettie when your last name is not Green.”

As frightened as a hare, Hetty sees she did not make a hit and hendeavors to havert his hemorrhage of wrath by saying, “Hit’s a kind of a hobby now for men to buy hair nets, isn’t it?”

Happeased, Mr. Heaton holds his hair net harvest tightly and unhamp-ered flits his harmless homeward way, feeling that he is the “hull thing,” hunts up his heart’s desire who gasps with hastonishment and noting the halo of hope, pride and virtue around his haggard face says: “Honestly did you hobtain this for me?”

“Hit is no more than han hordinary husband would do,” he harped modestly.

TRUBHE DEPARTMENT - 1900!

FRENZIED, FRIVOLOUS FRESHMAN

I'm just Aitkin to go to a dance Brentlinger, aren't you? If I could Curry favor with a Baker or a nice young Carpenter, who has a big Cole Carr I wouldn't need to Foster any rash ideas of suicide. I'd feel so Frischke and Ferree and when the trombone would whine and Blair and the Bells would toll the melody while the Fiddla would step on it—wouldn't we have a Topping time, old dear. Why I'd even go in a Moline tractor—in a Wagon—er Walk—er anything. If I had to walk over Thornes, they would not Paine me. I'd even dance to an Old Pipe Organ played by a Bunard Kerr, or dance with a guy Littler than I, if I could only go.

Eichel is a nifty Dresser, but such a good little Jane, she wouldn't do anything unless Hanna, her Elder, Grants her permission. And Intermill, the little Angelina, is afraid the Dean will Ketchem. What I want to know is when will Dewey Mary? Ommanney times Wil-cox dance with Casey? When will Lilly cut Timothy and if so what will Ram-say?

After the dance we would wander away to some little Booth, and O, wouldn't that be Bliss? Even if we can't have a Toddy we would get a Cherry submarine and then we'd walk Wright straight home like Christian sons and daughters. Faith, and we wouldn't go for a Long ride neath the Moon, in an Oldsmobile as Schuster Was-saw doing. We'd rather Dye than do anything to make the Dean Cross at us.

After all is said and Dunn here we sit listening to the rain, which dampens our enthusiasm, Sprinkle on the roof, while Helen writes a Linnea or two, to Johnson, all the time McCracken our heads to think of something new and juicy to tell him. All we can think of is that Adams crops out in the best of men and even our saintly Bishop makes violent love to Margaret and says he's like to Carter around forever. We think he should be a Schemel of himself, cause everyone knows he's married and what we'd like to know is how he makes his wife believe him when he says, "Finley, I tell nothing but the truth." But even such scandal loses it's spice and here we sit Waring a look of intense agony, Eaton Apels, chewing Erbs, longing for a Newman and awaiting the day when St. Bartholomew stops raving about Casper and lets someone talk about Sheridan. Mary Eyes Brown tickles our palate with Hammond eggs and Lucy told her they would taste better if she wouldn't Burnham. But that made her mad and got her Irish up and she said "Damm." So to cheer her up we indulged in our most delirious excitement; hunting for Roaches and watching Wallace and McAleer beat the little Kittle and make more or Leslie a big noise. We heard a terrible noise outside. Griffith listened hard and decided it was a Campbell ringing; Gillian insisted that she heard a Bob White singing. When Fanny asked Mitchell what it was, she said, "Search me, but it sounds like someone murdering Sweet Marie. We threw open the window and there 'neath a shady Bowers, we saw two figures standing motionless. Just beneath them we saw a girlish form slink into the shadows. "She gulped—Blanchard—and swooned in his arms. He brushed the powder from his Lepel and whispered—"You Pearl—you Dahl—may I kiss your Lipps?" She murmured, "Du Poncet." "House for a date, I Hadden seen you to ask you before?" Then the stealthy figure rose to it's majestic heights and hurled a poisoned dagger at the shuddering sister on the porch. The man, St. Paul, stepped back grandly and shouted: "To be Franch, my Creed, is to let the best woman, er—er—Erwin!" The hectic sight was too harrowing. We were aghast to see what a woman would do for Man-love. We closed the window Paine—barred the shutters, Burrowed into our Cribbs, beating our brows in sorrow and Pulliam pungently remarked, "All-man are so scarce in Greeley that even the Bald-win girls. Then we took a little Ginnap and slept till the Cox crowed and the sun's Rays woke us. Our final word is We hope the Doctor doesn't Crabbe about this.

THEM WAS THE DAYS

We used t' shine our own shoes whereas we now pay $1,359,576 annually int' the coffers o' the Greek.

Women used t' wash their own hair, but t'day ther's a half dozen beauty parlors in ever' buildin' in town an' no perceptible increase in beauties.

We used to slick up on Saturday night, but now we're dolled up all th' time.

We used t' write postal cards, but now we wire on th' slightest provocation.

We used t' be content with Niagary Falls once a year, but now we're allus on th' go.

Farmers didn' used t' know any better, but now ther educated an' discontented.

We used t' run three blocks t' see a dude, an' now we're all dudes.

You kin buy a pair o' socks or a fairly decent lookin' steak for what it costs t' have your nails manicured.

Calico is no longer worn 'cept in the reformatories.

You kin keep a cow fer what it costs t' wear silk stockin's.

Years ago th' doctors occasionally operated on somebuddy o' great consequence, but t' day ever'buddy you meet is just out from under th' knife, or'll be ripped open t'morrow.

Years ago th' president o' the Peoples Bank kept a hoss an' phaeton. T'day you can't cross th' street for autos.

T'day a feller don't think no more o' gettin' a auto overhauled than he used t' think o' buyin' a new mainspring.

Th' fillin' stations take in twice as much as th' ole time saloon an' set no free lunch.

A feller now spends as much on his wife's feet as he used t' spend on his home.

We used t' keep th' butter in th' cistern, but now we buy 45-cent ice.

We used t' make a pitcher o' lemonade occasionally, but now we take th' whole family to th' sody fountain ever' evenin'.

We used t' have chicken dinners at home, but now we buy 'em out at two dollars a plate, not includin' gasoline and wear on tires.

We used t' carry a umbreller, but now we wear a $35 raincoat.

A feller used t' have a wild, reckless Saturday night on fifty cents, includin' shave an' Flordy water, but t'day you don't git as much change back from a dollar as you used t' git back from a dime.

We used t' live at home, but t'day we only git our mail there.

LIBRARY HINTS

1. When you approach the desk, clear your throat, cough loudly or rap on the desk, the Librarian may be deaf.
2. If you see a book you want take it home without having it charged. No one else will want it.
3. While you have a chance, get a good collection of choice clippings from the newspapers and magazines and especially from the bound volumes.
4. If the book you want is not in kick about it. While you wait the Librarian will run out and buy it for you.
5. Be dunned at least three times before you pay a fifteen-cent fine. Then ask the librarian if she is going to buy chewing gum with it.
6. Leave your scrap paper right on the tables or floor if you want to. What do we pay a janitor for anyway.
7. Never put a book back in its right place. Stick it anywhere. Librarians are strong for this Sherlock-Holmes stuff.
8. Never pay any attention to signs. They are just put up to fill up space.
9. Make all the noise you can. Play with the lights. Slam the books around. Fall up and down the stairs. It helps break the monotony.
10. Put your feet on the tables. Chat with all your friends. Do all your fussing in the library. Above all, make it a "Social Center."

She laid the still white form beside those that had gone before. No groan, no sigh burst from her. Suddenly she let forth a cry that pierced the still night air making it vibrate into a thousand echoes. It seemed as if it came from her very soul. Twice the cry was repeated, and then all was quiet again. She would lay another egg again tomorrow.

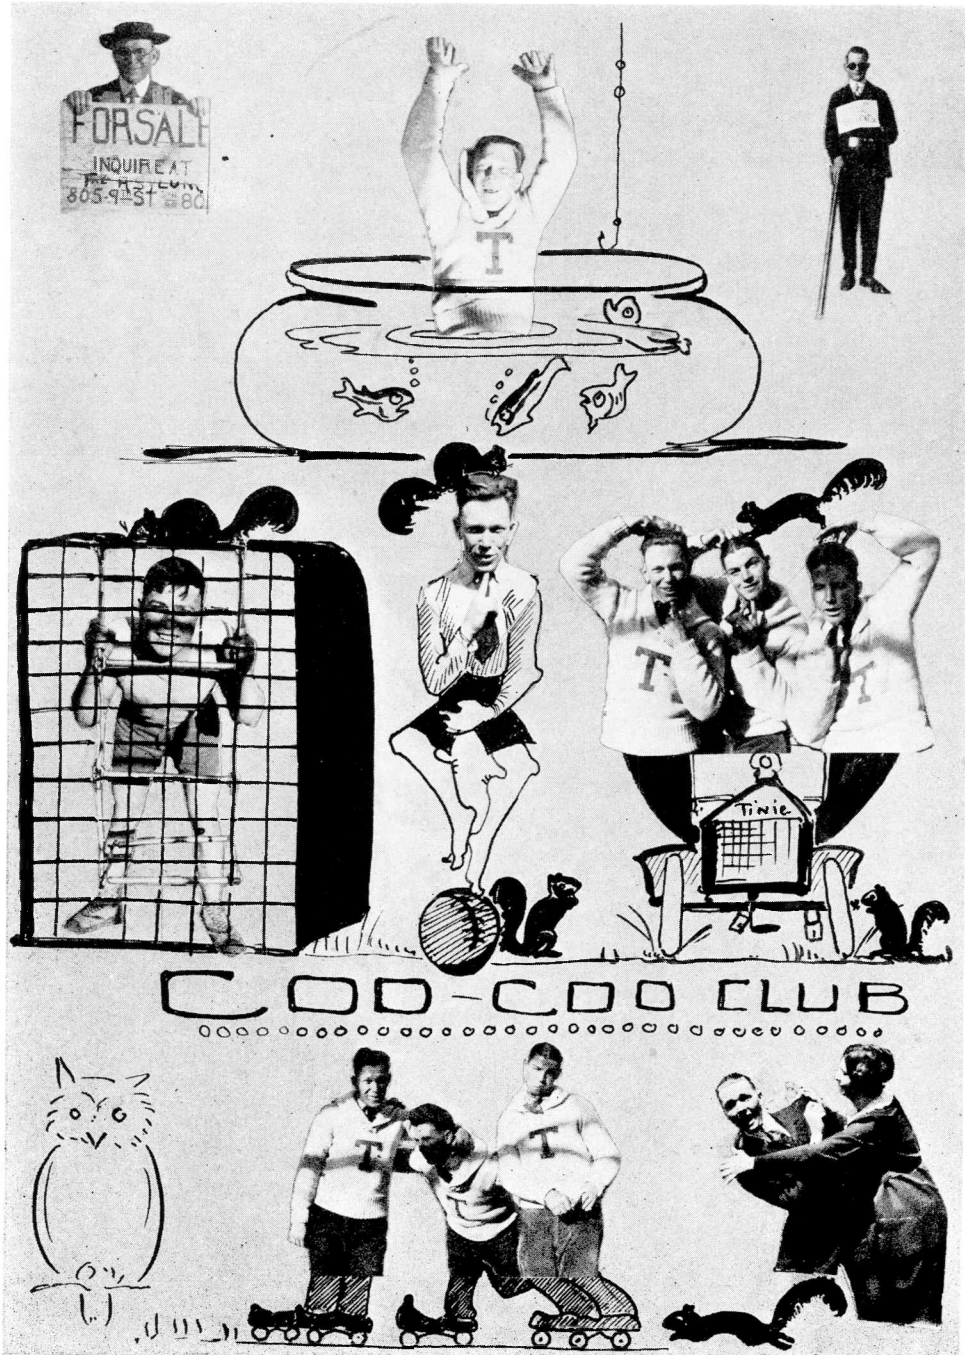

Two sons of Erin were talking together:

"And so yer name is O'Hara?" said one, "Are you any relation to Patrick O'Hara?"

"Very distantly," replied the other, "I was me mither's first child and Patrick was the thirteenth."

Newcomer—"Why do you ring two bells?"

Sophisticated Soph.—"We don't, we ring one twice!"

HEARD IN THE TRAINING SCHOOL

Kate, age six, had been going to school only a few weeks. She had learned to raise her hand if she wanted anything. One day she put this method into effect when she was sent to the chicken house to get the eggs. Just as she reached the chicken house door her mother heard her say: "All you chickens that have laid an egg raise your hands."

A somewhat unpatriotic little son of Italy, twelve years old, came to his teacher in the training school and asked if he could have his name changed.

"Why do you wish to change your name?"

"I want to be an American. I live in America now. I no longer want to be a dago."

"What American name would you like to have?"

"I have it here," he said, handing the teacher a dirty scrap of paper on which was written—

PATRICK DENNIS McCARTY!

Teacher: "What do you mean, Johnny, by speaking of Bill Shakespeare, Jimmie Riley and Jack Whittier?"

Johnny: "Well, you told me to get familiar with those authors."

Teacher—"James, what season is it when the flowers begin to bloom, the trees start budding and the grass comes up?"

James—"Baseball season."

Eight-year-old Robert had been ill for a week with tonsillitis, and nothing kept him contented but the pictures of his favorite Charlie Chaplin, clipped from the pages of the motion-picture periodical. One morning as his mother was sitting beside him he studied earnestly the full-page drawing of the million-dollar comedian—

"Mother," he said, "Will Charlie Chaplin go to Heaven?"

"Why, yes—I hope so," answered the somewhat astonished parent.

"Gee, won't God have lots of fun tho!" was Robert's comment.

To Our Readers

Each year the annual staff expresses its appreciation to its advertisers, and appeals to the readers to patronize the merchants who have "helped to make the annual possible."

This spring the staff gave out slips on which were printed questions on this topic. Sixty per cent of the answers were in favor of trading with the firms who patronize the college publications. We believe, however, that considerably more than sixty per cent of the college students do trade with the advertisers in the college annual, and will continue to encourage their friends to patronize the merchants who have shown an interest in college endeavors.
