HONORED ALUMNI

UNC ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The University of Northern Colorado Alumni Association is a growing, global network of more than 130,000 UNC Bears. Founded in 1965, we are graduates of all generations, continuing students, parents and friends. We proclaim our UNC ties with pride, and we believe in the power of giving back. We may come from different class years, different cities, and different careers, but together we believe — Once a Bear, Always a Bear.

THE HONORED ALUMNI AWARDS

The Honored Alumni Awards highlight some of the most distinguished alumni and friends of the University of Northern Colorado. For more than 70 years the university has honored Bears whose achievements, contributions and involvement advance our university and make the UNC degree more valuable. The honorees are examples of what it means to have a UNC education, and their personal and professional achievement give us a reason to celebrate our whole community.

DO YOU KNOW SOMEONE DESERVING OF AN HONORED ALUMNI AWARD?

To nominate alumni and friends for future selection, please visit unco.edu/alumni or contact the UNC Alumni Association. Nominations open in the fall.

HONORED ALUMNI

Thousands of alumni call the University of Northern Colorado home. Their support for and ongoing involvement in the university are a point of pride for the UNC Alumni Association. Among this global network, a distinguished group of graduates exemplify the standards and qualities to which all Bears aspire.

They are UNC's Honored Alumni.

Each year a class of graduates are inducted as Honored Alumni during a ceremony that pays tribute to their personal and professional accomplishments and dedication to the university.

While the 2020 class of Honored Alumni stand tall among our honorees, their ceremony was canceled due to the 2019-2020 coronavirus pandemic.

Yet, it is through adversity that the inspiration of the 2020 honorees can shine. A nurse, educators, philanthropist, and community developer, the honorees are admirable examples of what it means to be a UNC Bear.

BILL BENSON '76

Every spring, Bill Benson treks across the Colorado plains to return to UNC and attend the annual History Department Awards Ceremony. He has worked in Sidney, Nebraska, as a financial advisor for the past 26 years, and he attends the ceremony so he can award the Benson Scholarships to the recipients in person.

Benson is a loyal and significant supporter of UNC's History department, and he has been devoted to UNC for decades. His love of history and interest in supporting UNC students led Benson to establish the William H. Benson History Scholarship in 2004 and to establish the William H. Benson Endowment in 2014 to continue the scholarship into the future. Through these funds, Benson has funded 105 scholarships for UNC students to date.

The Benson Scholarship has become a prestigious and coveted award for undergraduates studying history at UNC. The fund has grown to provide healthy support to six undergraduate majors each year.

Because of his love of history and his belief that a deep understanding of it provides an important pathway to future success, Benson has insisted on rewarding excellence with his namesake scholarship. Over the years, the History department has awarded the "Bensons" to top students. These students have gone on to successful careers in a variety of fields, including as foreign service officers, teachers and professors. Benson's love of history and dedication to UNC has supported students who developed a deep understanding of their role as citizens and leaders in Colorado while studying at UNC.

ANISSA GUZMAN '93, '01

Anissa Guzman has had a successful career in nursing education while always remembering her alma mater and supporting current students. After teaching at community colleges in northern Colorado, Guzman returned to her alma mater as an assistant professor in the Nursing program. From there, she has been the Director of Nursing Education for Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center and is now the Division Manager of Clinical Education for Catholic Health Initiatives in the Nebraska and Iowa region.

Guzman has shared her story to show that a pathway is possible for students with similar identities to follow in her footsteps. During her first week on campus as a nursing professor, Guzman visited the César Chávez Cultural Center (CCCC) to offer support to Nursing-seeking students and set up meetings to offer advice and support. She also served on a Success Looks Like ME career panel about Sports and Health Professions. The career panel series brings successful alumni back to campus to provide current students with insights into working in specific industries and professional networking opportunities.

Upon finding that many students struggled with food insecurity, she arranged delivery of groceries to the CCCC and ordered pizza for students during finals. Although her career has taken Guzman away from Colorado and her alma mater, she remains committed to UNC's students. Guzman continues to provide nourishment for struggling students, and she also offers words of love and support. When the CCCC has celebrated milestones, Guzman has returned to share the center's joy. Her support has sparked interest from other alumni to provide in a similar fashion for current students.

GARY O. LOO '64

The professional accomplishments and philanthropic dedication of Gary Loo have exemplified UNC's tradition of excellence. Upon graduation, Loo went to work with his brother Dusty, managing the daily operations of his family's growing business — known today as Current. The direct mail order business sold everything from checks and greeting cards to cookbooks and gifts.

Under the guidance of the Loo brothers, the company dramatically grew to employ more than 2,000 people and fill more than three million orders per year. With annual sales at $115 million, Current became the largest direct mail marketer of greeting cards, stationery, gifts and related products. Having amassed more than $100 million in sales, the Loo family decided to sell the business to American Can in late 1986.

After the sale, the Loo brothers formed High Valley Group Inc., which invests in real estate and other business ventures. Since then the High Valley Group has financed the prospering Briargate subdivision on Colorado Spring's north side, helped build the Sky Sox Stadium and invested in the popular Izze Beverage Company of Boulder.

Throughout his prosperous career, Loo has remained an active supporter of UNC. He volunteered to serve as a member of the Alumni Association Board in the late 1980s, and in 2001 he established the Gary Loo Athletic Scholarship Endowment, which has funded scholarships for UNC student athletes for 18 consecutive years. Additionally, Loo has consistently supported the Kenneth W. Monfort College of Business Dean's Discretionary Fund, providing for additional student scholarships, student travel, faculty support and program support that otherwise may not have been possible.

JOSE MARTINEZ III '07

Jose Martinez III has a deep understanding of what is required to create a well-rounded, inclusive educational environment that addresses the needs of its diverse student population. After six years of teaching at Bear Creek High School in Lakewood, Colo., Martinez was nominated by his peers and won the prestigious Milken Educator Award in 2013. This annual award is given to a select group of teachers around the country who have established themselves as exceptional educators early in their careers.

Martinez has a tireless dedication to student success and community enrichment. In addition to his duties as a teacher and assistant principal, Martinez is known for his ability to engage students in beneficial group activities. Martinez coaches junior varsity tennis, advises the student senate, assists students in the production of educational videos, serves on the school's technology committee, and even acts as a DJ for student gatherings to provide students with a safe, drug-free social environment. This gift for connecting with young learners provides support and engagement for even the most at-risk students in the school.

Martinez is a 2015 recipient of the UNC 10 Under 10 young alumni awards, has given of his time as an ambassador for UNC and has participated in various on-campus volunteer events. In 2018, he was the keynote speaker for the National Field Experience Conference in Greeley, and in 2019 was the keynote speaker for the Cumbres Graduation Reception.

Martinez has shown an extraordinary connection to the founding values of UNC through excellence in the field of education, and he's carried those values forward into a new and ever-changing educational environment.

RICO WINT '09

Through his nonprofit Young Men of Purpose, Rico Wint motivates young men around the Denver metro area. “Mr. Rico,” as he is affectionately known by his students, is known for his powerful and riveting lectures.

A product of Denver and Aurora public schools, he understands the challenges that many inner-city young men face daily. Wint endured hardship at an early age, burying his father at the age of 15. These experiences inform his passion and enthusiasm for inspiring young men to be their best selves through practical, applicable social and leadership training.

Wint has been running YMOP for more than a decade, since founding the program in 2009. This platform has allowed him to support and influence more than 3,000 young men across the Denver and Aurora metro area. Wint has received various awards and honors for his work, but he is most proud of Aurora Central’s “Legend Award” for excellence in community service, an award he received due to his work with YMOP.

Wint has always encouraged scholarship and higher education attainment for the young men he serves. From the affectionate life-changing college illustrations he shares with the YMOP students, to his undying endorsement for UNC in every setting, Wint is undeniably passionate about his alma mater. He has also hosted “YMOP at UNC Day” where he coordinated a day to take students from different districts and schools to visit UNC together. Over the past decade, he has watched more than 25 YMOP students choose to attend UNC. Some have directly credited Wint as the reason they chose to enroll at the university.
